I would hate to see a service that I pay for each month not allowed to broadcast the local traffic/weather/news/emergency information. However, at this time I don't benefit from this service, unless I travel into the areas where they do cover. At that time, I wouldn't know which 'local' stations would carry the traffic/weather/news/emergency info unless I looked on the internet to find stations before going on the trip.

If FCC does decide to limit/restrict the local traffic/weather/new and other items, it will be a sad day and a turning point where competition will no longer be done by getting to be better than your competitor, just go to the government to get more rules in place to kill off the competitors..
